IRISH PRAY AND PARADE IN HONOR OF ST. PATRICK

Celebration Begins With Special Masses; Cleveland Bishop Suspends Lenten Laws for the Day.

By The Associated Press

The shamrock of Ireland bedecked the apparel of Gaelic Ohioans today as they paraded, worshipped and dined in honor of St. Patrick.

The annual tribute to Erin's patron saint, the man who took Christianity to the Emerald Isle, began early with special masses in churches and cathedrals. Bishop Joseph Schrembs at Cleveland suspended Lenten laws of fast and abstinence for the day.

Ten thousand persons of Irish extraction staged at Cleveland the largest parade in the state. One hundred floats, 18 bands and many civic organizations took part. James F. O'Malley, 78, oldest Cleveland member of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, was called to a place of honor with his six sons.

Columbus sons of Erin attended mass in St. Patrick's church before a downtown parade. Some of the marchers had real shamrocks sent over from the "auld sod" and preserved for the occasion.

Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy was to speak at a night dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick at Hamilton.

The house received a bill which would authorize the state relief commission to distribute on a basis [illegible] the $1,000,000 appropriated for flood relief more than a month ago. Its author is Rep. John Hay[illegible] Democrat of Cincinnati.

The [illegible] bill which permits courts to [illegible] the foreclosure sale of property would be extended for two years by a bill approved by the house and returned to the senate for concurrence in important amendments.

Another measure passed by the house and sent to the senate would permit the state treasurer to lend building and loan associations in flood-devastated areas up to $10,000,000 during the next five years for home rehabilitation.

Flood Relief Asked

Additional relief for property owners who suffered losses in the flooded areas is offered in a bill recommended for passage by the senate taxation committee. It would extend from Jan. 1 to March 1 the deadline for listing personal property for taxation.

The senate education committee reported out a bill which would require the state to provide free textbooks to pupils in all elementary and high schools, with an annual allowance of $2.50 a pupil. School districts are requested to provide this service, and the bill would extend it to parochial schools and to public schools in districts without adequate funds to buy books. No books of "sectarian type or content" could be purchased with the state funds.

The senate was told the bill would cost the state more than $3,000,000 annually.

Sen. Nichols' bill to establish a civil division in the Middletown municipal court received senate approval and was sent to the house.

Lewis [illegible] of the Committee for Industrial Organization [illegible] A. strikes was regarded as providing the quickest means of a solution.

The next Chrysler move under Michigan law would be to make a showing in court that the injunction had been violated and to ask for writs of attachment for arrest of the strikers. Serving of these would rest with Sheriff Thomas C. Wilcox.

Picket Line Two Miles

A union picket line nearly two miles in length extended entirely around the Dodge plant, where the crowd chanted, "we want Wilcox."

At the Chrysler Jefferson avenue plant picket lines included an improvised band of girls beating on tin pans.

Strikers at the Chrysler Highland park plant placed a sign on the gate reading "visitors keep out."

When newspapers arrived at the Dodge plant with the announcement of Martin's refusal to meet with Gov. Murphy's committee today, a roar arose from the crowd.

A band played in front of the Chrysler Jefferson avenue plant.

"Refuse to Move"

Pickets paraded in front of another plant carrying placards which said: "Refuse to move. We'll die before we do."

"The sitdown strikes will cease when the conditions which produced them no longer exist," Martin declared in a telegram to Gov. Murphy. "We are of the opinion that such a board (the governor's committee) will not serve to eradicate the evils of job insecurity and low wages. Sitdowns are a symptom of a deeper condition and not the cause."

"Workers are not deeply moved by the tearful appeals of millionaire employers for the protection of their property against sitdowns," the telegram concluded, "when they remember how these same employers have [illegible] them, have [illegible] and have exploited them to the limit of endurance for years."

Alfred A. Petrasch state commerce director described some of the abuses as selling lots in wholesale blocks for speculation, guaranteeing the purchaser of lots an option of re-sale and failure to establish adequate funds for the perpetual care of graves.

Karl T. Finn manager of the Cincinnati Better Business bureau said that there has been considerable misrepresentation and some fraud in the sale of cemetery lots. He asserted that a farm hand invested $18,000 in the lots on a salesman's promise that he could double his investment and is now trying to recover his money.

Paul Ellis of Cincinnati told the committee that the old line companies were not adequately represented on a recodification committee appointed by [illegible] which caused the commerce director to declare "I resent that. You can't impugn my integrity."

AUTO THIEVES DO A BIT OF TRADING

When does thievery become a fair trade? That is the question bothering police today as they seek to unravel the theft of two automobile tires and wheels.

Shortly afterward Mrs. John Seckel of 267 Pearl street reported that a tire and wheel had been stolen from a car parked at her residence. When police called to investigate the theft they found the wheel from the Jacobs car which apparently had been left in exchange.

LAFOLLETTE CITES AKRON LABOR SPIES

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 17—Chairman LaFollette, Progressive of Wisconsin, of the senate civil liberties committee asserted today an employers association at Akron, O, placed undercover agents in the Goodyear Tire Co. plant there last year.

Paul S. Litchfield, Goodyear president, said he had no knowledge of the undercover work. He told the committee his company had employed no undercover agents since he became manager of the Akron factory in 1913.

LaFollette said the Akron Employers association spent in excess of $21,000 on undercover agents in 1936 and stationed agents of the corporation's auxiliary which LaFollette called "an industrial espionage agency" in the Goodyear plant.

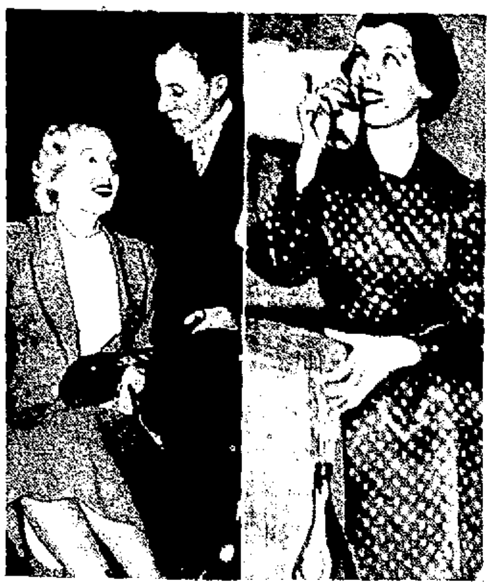
STAGE STARS STRANDED IN HOTEL STRIKE



Two French stars of stage and opera were left stranded in Detroit's Hotel Statler when service employes went on strike, leaving elevators idle, food service paralyzed and guests in a dilemma. Among those affected were Lily Pons, right, diminutive opera star, who was marooned on the twelfth floor, and Mlle. Madeleine DeCharpin, left, noted French stage beauty, who was forced to rest during her climb to the eleventh floor despite the assistance of French Consul Maxime Raingue. Three other principal Detroit hotels were similarly affected.

HAPPINESS

Wednesday, March 17—"Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding." Read Proverbs 3:13-20.

We all feel that life should carry before it a plus sign, not a minus sign. The most obvious plus sign in life is pleasure. But pleasure can satisfy only one instinct, or one side of our nature, at a time, and is at best short lived. Pleasure cannot content the whole man all the time.

We go on, therefore, from pleasure to happiness—a much higher ideal. A great deal has been said in these recent days about our "right to happiness."

The Bible is a happy book, rather than an unhappy book. But, strangely, it has little to say in praise of happiness and few rules for finding it. Happiness would seem to be civil peace established out of the warring instincts, desires, and interests within our own natures and characters. A well-tuned, smoothly running motor might be said to be "happy." So of a life in which all its parts are playing together in a single harmonious whole. Happiness is therefore a matter of being at peace with ourselves. But happiness is a half-way house: beyond it lies the great Christian idea of joy.

Prayer: O Almighty and most merciful God, of thy bountiful goodness keep us, we beseech thee, from all things that may hurt us; that with inward harmony we may cheerfully accomplish those things which thou wouldest have us do; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

ROTARY HEARS STORY OF KING TUT'S TOMB

No Truth to "Curse" Rumors, Traveler Says in Illustrated Talk.

A graphic account of one of the most important archaeological achievements of the century, discovery of the tomb of King Tutankhamen in 1922 was given members of the Marion Rotary club yesterday by George S. Kendall, traveler and lecturer.

The talk, illustrated with lantern slides of actual photographs of the tomb and excavations made in the tremendous task of uncovering the ancient sepulchre, was given following the Rotarians' weekly luncheon at Hotel Harding.

In closing his talk, Mr. Kendall refuted the widely accepted report that a curse had been placed upon any one who violated the sanctity of the tomb. He said that there was absolutely no signs or evidence of anything in the great rock-hewn burial space which would contaminate or infect persons entering it.

The pictures shown by Mr. Kendall, he said, are reproductions of photographs taken under the supervision of Howard Carter, American Egyptologist who was associated with the Earl of Carnarvon in the excavations and discovery.

The photographs gave a clear conception of the grandeur of the burial place and the vast value of its contents, most of the furnishings and decorations being either solid gold or embellished with gold.

Mr. Kendall whose home is near Pittsburgh, was assisted in presentation of his lecture by Mrs. Kendall. While here they are giving similar illustrated talks before school pupils.

The speaker was introduced to the club by C. D. Brown, Rotary program chairman for March.

NEW OHIO FOOD LAW OBSERVED

Public Eating Utensils Now Given Sterilizing Treatment.

Virtually every food and drink establishment in Marion county, outside of Marion city, now is using antiseptic chlorine treatment for eating utensils as a result of the county health department's recent campaign, County Health Commissioner Dr. H. [illegible] said today.

The campaign was carried out in accordance with a state law of long standing which requires all these establishments to sterilize all eating utensils after each use. The law provides the utensils may be held in water at 180 degrees for five minutes or exposed to live steam for five minutes. The health department of Ohio, however, recognizes the chlorine treatment as an effective and simple means of sterilization, according to E. [illegible] Willey, county sanitarian, who is conducting the campaign.

Utensils should be first washed clean, then immersed for not less than one minute in a rinse containing 100 parts of chlorine to a million of water. The treatment does not affect the taste of the food, Mr. Willey said. The dishes then may be permitted to drain dry or may be scalded and wiped

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT FACE PIMPLES

These disfiguring little spots often result from a slight, temporary disturbance, or merely from incorrect cleansing, or sometimes they are more persistent due to deeper internal causes.

While properly treating the underlying cause, you can relieve the itchy, burning soreness and help your skin by using an ointment that will keep the medication in contact with the pimply spots. Apply it every night and leave it on all night. It does a world of good.

For more than 40 years people have used Resinol Ointment to fill this need. It soothes the irritation and aids healing. It also treats the oil pores where many surface pimples start. Washing first with Resinol Soap quickens the pleasing results.

Buy a jar of Resinol Ointment and cake of Resinol Soap from any druggist. For free sample write Resinol, Dept. 10, Baltimore, Md.

Pneumonia is caused by a germ known as the "pneumonococcus." Strange as it may seem, this germ is present in the mouths of from [illegible] per cent of healthy individuals. There are several "types" of this germ. "Type one" and type two are rarely found in the secretions of healthy persons, and these particular types cause a large proportion of the serious cases of pneumonia.

By means of special tests, it is possible actually to determine the type of pneumonia with which the sufferer is afflicted. When that is done it may be possible to prepare a curative serum. But, bear in mind, this serum is of value only in certain types of pneumonia. Do not be misled by the popular belief that the pneumonia serum is a shot-gun remedy capable of killing the germs in every case of pneumonia. It is of great value in suitable cases, hastening recovery when accurately used.

Pneumonia is an infectious disease resulting in the liberation of toxins or poisons. Sometimes these reach and damage the heart. Be-

OHIO AMATEUR GOLF TOURNEY PLANS MADE

District Elimination Tests To Be Part of Revised Program for 1937.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 17—Golfers from public courses of Ohio heard today that they would face district elimination tests for a chance to compete in the state amateur tournament.

A committee from the State Public Links Golf association announced its tournament would be held at the Indian Springs course in Columbus July 17 and 18, nearly a month after the state amateur, instead of immediately before the amateur as has been customary. The latter event has been scheduled for June 21 to 26 at Canton.

Previously the lowest scorers in the public links qualified for the amateur. This year the public links association will select 32 players in district qualifications as their representatives in the amateur.

The quotas: Cleveland district five; Cincinnati district, five; Akron district, four; Columbus district, four; Dayton district, three; Mansfield district two; Youngstown district, three; Toledo district, four, and Canton district, two. In addition, the defending champion and runner-up last year, Paul Segulin and John Kato, respectively, will qualify automatically. Both live in Akron.

Charles Burns of Akron, president of the public course group, in announcing the competition plans, said he expected 150 players to enter the regular tournament of 72 holes medal play.

Mr. Covault left Marion about 20 years ago. He worked at the Osgood Co. office and also was assistant boys secretary of the Y. M. C. A. a short time following his graduation from Marion High school. He attended school in Galion before the family came to Marion.

He is president of the Lorain Rotary club, a past president of the Chamber of Commerce there and organizer of the Lorain Industrial foundation. He and Mrs. Covault, formerly Miss Esther Schoenberger of Marion, are parents of two daughters and one son.

The newly formed District 21-A was made by dividing the former District 21 and taking nine clubs from District 22. Nomination of the district governor will be made at the district conference to be held in Youngstown on May 6 and 7.

Since residing in Lorain, Mr. Covault has built up one of the largest general insurance agencies in the city. He served as secretary of the Lorain Rotary club eight years before becoming its president and has attended a number of International conventions of the organization. He moved to Lorain in 1930.

Mr. Covault is a son of Aaron L. Covault of Marion, now in Florida, and a brother of Cecil G. Covault of 302 South Prospect street.

LAMBORN ORDERS NEW STAMP ISSUE

Five thousand of the four-cent issue of the army and navy series of stamps have been ordered here, Postmaster L. J. Lamborn announced today. The stamps will be first placed on sale at Washington, D. C., March 23, and at other postoffices as soon thereafter as printing and distribution will permit.

The four-cent issue is the same size as the previous ones and are printed in gray ink. They have for a central design the portraits in large oval frames of Generals Robert E. Lee and Thomas J. (Stonewall) Jackson. Between and partly under the ovals is a reproduction of the ancestral home of the Lees with the name Stratford Hall underneath in dark Gothic print.

Announcement also has been received of the sailing dates of the first flight of the new China clipper from San Francisco to Hong Kong. The clipper will leave from San Francisco on its westbound flight April 21, and is due to leave Hong Kong on its eastbound flight on April 29. The new 20 cent and 50 cent trans-Pacific airmail stamps or any other airmail stamps may be used by collectors to stamp the letters, Mr. Lamborn announces. No trans-Pacific stamps were ordered for the Marion office.

If and when the public [illegible] strikes and the attitude of employers and law enforcement agencies [illegible] will conclude that even tacit consent [illegible] not be given to a method which threatens general welfare from so many directions. Ohio, grappling [illegible] with the problem of raising revenue for relief, finds [illegible] comfort in the fact that its state government is free from debt. Only three other states, Florida, Indiana and Nebraska, are similarly situated.

Are these states better off than Ohio because they have no constitutional barriers against debt? Will they have any advantages in the future which Ohio cannot expect to have? WASHINGTON, March [illegible]—[illegible]

[illegible] Secretary Wallace [illegible]

Mr. Wallace has worried himself [illegible] trying to [illegible] the difficult position [illegible] the largest cotton planter [illegible] publicly predicting [illegible] more cotton in 1937 [illegible]

AAA reports indicate that both Mr. Wallace and the largest cotton planter are being taken literally [illegible] the canebrakes and at the crossroads and the great trouble is that cotton (as well as tobacco) is an export crop which Mr. Wallace does not want produced to the limit.

His master publicity minds have been deep in thought for several days figuring some way to get him unraveled without removing his [illegible]. The [illegible] will be out with something shortly.

Mr. Wallace's original thought was that abundant general production this year would store the bins for his ever-abnormal granary, but he has already built up an abnormal luxury for cotton in his commodity credit corporation. His soil conservation curtailment program held production down to 12,000,000 bales last year, but experts now fear 16,000,000 bales.

Untimeliness

The supreme court apparently does not know as much about timing as Mr. Roosevelt. On March 15, the day when all taxpayers were groaning over their income tax returns, the court handed down a decision in favor of a taxpayer. However, the decision favored only those taxpayers receiving income from municipal, state or federal [illegible]. Consequently it may [illegible] other taxpayers share this [illegible] proportion of the government [illegible] and thus the ruling may [illegible] unpopular [illegible] the largest [illegible]

LAWRENCE REVIEWS ECCLES STATEMENT

chasing power is curtailed, production drops off and unemployment ensues—the cycle is inescapable. Mr. Eccles gives a hint of future policies thus:

"Other means than restrictive money policy must be used under present conditions to control unwarranted price advances which result in the rise of the cost of living.

"The remedy lies not in a restrictive monetary policy but in vigorous government intervention with all the powers at its command to deal directly with the causes that might endanger the process of a stable and enduring recovery."

System Is Complicated

Why not? asks the average man. If prices get out of line, why not let the government regulate them? Plausible enough, as, indeed, are most surface attitudes toward increase of governmental power. But if government sets out to control price, it must control labor cost, and if it sets out to control profits, it must affect the values of stocks and bonds, real estate and what not. Once that vicious circle starts, we might have a panic caused as surely by government ineptitude this time as it was caused by the speculative mania of private interests in 1929.

Worse than this, however, is the cry that the government should have "all necessary powers to deal with the situation." This is the beginning of dictatorship and the end of democracy. It started that way in Germany and in Italy. It is starting that way in America. Little by little as political government seeks to manage a nation's economy and to control economic laws, when it cannot control human nature or human relations, the economic system is undermined.

As unemployment grows and hardships for the poor people increase because their pay envelopes will not buy necessities of life, the demand arises for the extinction of all opposition to the government, no matter from what quarter. Then come limitations on the church, the press and on political parties.

Nobody in the administration wants to bring about such conditions, of course, and everybody, including John Lewis, in the labor world is denouncing dictatorships. But the trend of the moment is toward more and more intervention by government in economic affairs, with the idea of artificial control of the businesses of the country, an adventure that has usually led straight to economic chaos and then inevitably to dictatorship as the only alternative to anarchy.

Letters From Our Readers

NEW SITDOWN PROPOSAL

Editor of The Star: Just a reader of your daily paper, I want to state I have been a reader of the Marion Daily Star for the last 32 years and hope to read it for the next 32 years. I am 52 years old.

I have been watching the paper and listening on the radio and have read and heard about the sitdown strikes all over the United States. It seems to me that they win out and so getting down to the final question, why wouldn't it be possible for citizens of the state and the United States to organize a sitdown strike against taxes?

If the people don't call for a showdown the question is, where is this going to stop? It seems to me that as soon as a man gets into office, from the president on down to dog catcher regardless of who he is, all he thinks of is to get his relations and friends good jobs and start raising salaries. Let these so-called white shirt men live on the salaries that a good old dirt farmer has to live on and there won't be so many of them looking for those jobs. I would like to hear from other readers on this question.

More to follow later on.

FIRST MARRIAGE CODE

Although the first legislature of Ohio, in session from March 1 to April 16—barely seven weeks—was required to give most of its time to the details of state government, it did enact a number of general laws.

One of the first such matters to be considered was the regulation of marriage. That act permitted male persons 21 years of age and over and females 18 years of age and over to marry. It carried also a provision, as our present law on the subject does, that with the consent of parents or guardians male persons 18 years of age or over and female persons 14 years of age and over might enter into the bonds of matrimony. A general marriage code also was formulated.

Married Comrades

BY ADELE GARRISON

Appearance of Madge's Faith or Explains Need for Secrecy at Inn.

"HOW COME?" Mary queried in slangy excitement when Lillian asked if we realized that we were still "in a dungeon cell."

"Look around you," Mrs. Underwood answered. "There isn't a window in the place. But there is fresh air, so I am sure those gratings"—she indicated a pair with an elegant forefinger—"mask upward shafts to the ground above. But we're still below the earth's surface."

"We found out that little thing too," Harry said. "The Lord only knows how far below the surface we are, but I think it's quite a step. D'ye know what I think?"

"Ask us something easy," his wife told him gibing, "but don't waste time in the asking. Tell us quickly."

"Well, I believe this is one of the chief's most carefully guarded hideouts—we all know he has a number of them scattered around the country, and you can bet he's given most careful directions for our being brought here."

Six at Dinner?

"Do you think," I queried, "that he may be coming here tonight?"

Mr. Underwood shot a kindly pitying glance at me.

"I don't believe there's a chance in the world," he said. "That isn't the way he does things. He probably has some particular job for each of us and thinks this is the best place for us to stay until he's ready for us to do it."

"Probably that's it," I said despondently, and then Mary gave an excited cry as she pointed a dramatic finger at the dinner table.

"Look!" she exclaimed. "Am I dreaming, or are there six places set?" Our eyes followed her hand, and we verified her observation.

"That's right, Mary," Lillian said. "Six it is. But that doesn't—"

"And we're only five," Mary swept on triumphantly. "Don't you see? Somebody's coming to dine with us! It might be Grandpa Spencer, and it might be — Noel!"

Her voice was tremulous, eager, and I knew that Lillian hated to dampen her happy anticipation which we feared could not be realized.

"You mustn't hope for that, dear child. Remember, we don't know that the chief is in contact with either of the Veritrens. And if he were, the last thing the chief would do would be to send an inexperienced lad like Noel on an errand which he evidently considers a highly important one. I think it is far more likely that your Auntie Madge was misunderstood over the telephone, and that the cook and waitress of this establishment are preparing for a party of six instead of five."

"That is just what they are doing," said a voice behind us, and we whirled to confront the tall, spare figure of a comely competent woman. Apparently it was Mrs. Perkins.

Favorable Impression.

Brown-gray hair neatly banked around a well-shaped head, an intellectual face with rather classical outlines, shrewd gray eyes behind eyeglasses, and a firm mouth which twitched slightly at the corners as she greeted us, made up an outward personality which I liked at sight, and I knew that my impression was shared by the others of our party.

"The Smiths of Narragansett, I believe," she said, with twitching lips. "I am so glad to see you, but I can not permit you to slander my understanding of a telephone message. There are six places at dinner, and the sixth—"

She never finished her sentence. At my first glance of the figure which came from the door behind her, I flashed across the room, and was clasped closely in my father's arms.

A Form of Revolution

[illegible] a form of revolution which [illegible]

Sitdown strikes are a form of revolution [illegible] themselves know that. The men [illegible] know [illegible]. The management they attempt to [illegible] by seizure of property knows it. Unfortunately the public at large still is disposed to talk all around the point without [illegible].

If and when the public [illegible] sitdown strikes and the attitude of employes and law enforcement agencies which [illegible] them possible in the same realistic light it will conclude that even their consent [illegible] not be given to a method which threatens general welfare from so many directions. Because union leadership itself is only partially effective when irresponsible groups of workers are permitted to disregard personal and property rights it is to be hoped that in the effort to win public confidence labor leaders may use their influence to [illegible] sitdown [illegible].

Select Company

Ohio, grappling and grumbling with the problem of raising revenue for relief, find[illegible] comfort in the fact its state government is free from debt. Only three other states, Florida, Indiana and Nebraska, are similarly situated.

The rest are in debt from their ankles to their ears and a few of them are in over their heads. State debt is piled on local debt so high it would take years of effort under the most favorable circumstances to get it unpiled. In all probability the effort never will be made.

Are these states better off than Ohio [illegible] they have no constitutional barriers [illegible]? Will they have any advantages in the future which Ohio can not expect to have? On the contrary they look upon Ohio jealously as one of a select company whose members somehow avoided trouble. For what that jealousy may be worth at a time when going into debt is the national fashion, Ohio should take it [illegible]. It might [illegible] the threat of [illegible] taxes [illegible] payable now [illegible] as easy to face as the debts which other states hope to be able to pay tomorrow with interest.

Old Speeches Return As Plaque

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 17—[illegible] of digging up [illegible] is [illegible] a major [illegible] to the [illegible] of the new deal.

Now [illegible] of President Roosevelt was plagued with his words from his 1932 [illegible] that court packing would be [illegible] dangerous [illegible]. Agriculture Secretary Wallace is privately [illegible] himself [illegible] passing over the invitation he gave farmers a few weeks ago to produce as abundantly as they can.

Mr Wallace has worked himself into knots before trying to maintain the difficult position of both abundance and scarcity, but [illegible] it is really getting complicated. For instance, the largest [illegible] planter is helping Wallace [illegible] publicly predicting the world will [illegible] more cotton in 1937-38. Inside AAA reports indicate that both Mr Wallace and the largest cotton planter are being taken literally in the canebrakes and at the cross roads and the great trouble is that cotton (as well as tobacco) is an export crop which Mr Wallace does not want produced to the limit.

His master publicity minds have been deep in thought for several days figuring some way to get him unraveled without removing his spine. They will be out with something shortly.

Mr Wallace's original thought was that abundant general production this year would store the bins for his ever abnormal granary, but he has already built up an abnormal history for cotton in his commodity credit corporation. His soil conservation curtailment program held production down to 12,000,000 bales last year, but experts now fear 16,000,000 bales.

Untimeliness

The supreme court apparently does not know as much about timing as Mr Roosevelt. On March 15, the day when all taxpayers were groaning over their income tax returns, the court handed down a decision in favor of a taxpayer. However, the decision favored only those taxpayers receiving income from municipal, state or federal quarters. Consequently it may make other taxpayers hate this [illegible] proportion of the government [illegible] and thus the ruling may become unpopular among the larger number.

Mr Roosevelt should [illegible] the court some of his publicity [illegible].

Misgivings

The [illegible] La Follette [illegible] Reynolds and Pittman [illegible] bills [illegible] public argument [illegible] full of [illegible] legislators do not seem to like either bill or see [illegible] difference between [illegible] not vote against neither [illegible].

The feelings go down to [illegible] controlling factor of [illegible] for their districts. What [illegible] is that the President is empowered upon declaration of war to put an [illegible] products of all [illegible] in which they [illegible] war the President [illegible] would [illegible] everything.

[illegible] wonder what will happen if American [illegible] the farmers [illegible] will do to farm prices. The Wallace [illegible] feel [illegible] their [illegible] they will begin [illegible] other [illegible] allowing [illegible] permanently [illegible].

Thus neither bill suits [illegible] many [illegible] will be [illegible] in the end because the [illegible].

Ur—r—r

The [illegible] Works Progress [illegible] and Public Works [illegible] into the public prints [illegible] are trying [illegible] get a lot more money [illegible] the President [illegible] them in the budget, and he will have to disappoint [illegible] or the other.

Every time the President leaves town [illegible] two [illegible] men run over [illegible]. The [illegible] warning [illegible] has made them quieter at [illegible] this time but has not curbed the [illegible] ambition.

Split

Some surprise [illegible] developed and [illegible] develop in the [illegible] over the President's court [illegible] program.

One which [illegible] not yet [illegible] the [illegible] friend and leader [illegible] Prof. Felix Frankfurter [illegible] opposition. While [illegible] declined comment publicly, several [illegible] found here who [illegible] President [illegible] for [illegible] like he [illegible].

The unexpectedly hot opposition of the Presidential friend [illegible] Senator Wheeler [illegible] bill [illegible] monopoly [illegible] suspension of antitrust [illegible] etc., which he believes will [illegible].

On the other hand [illegible] distinguished leader of the bar [illegible] of Kentucky [illegible] chief justice of the Kentucky [illegible] court [illegible] program [illegible] the court [illegible] packed [illegible] untoward [illegible] happened.

[illegible] Chairman [illegible] on about the same ground.

Waiting

The President's present [illegible] ment on the court matter [illegible] likened by [illegible] new men around the White House to the [illegible] figure of the man who ate the potato that was too hot to swallow [illegible] to emit. One of [illegible] though it was [illegible] but [illegible] to [illegible] the President.

Court of Common Pleas, Marion County, Ohio, Case No. [illegible].

Home Owners' Loan Corporation, Plaintiff, vs. W. W. Hawkins, et al., Defendant.

In pursuance of an order of sale issued from said Court to me directed in the above entitled action, I will expose to sale, at public auction, at the door of the Court House in Marion, Marion County, Ohio, on Saturday, the 20th day of March, 1937, at 10 o'clock A. LAWRENCE REVIEWS ECCLES STATEMENT

chasing power is curtailed, production drops off and unemployment ensues—the cycle is inescapable. Mr. Eccles gives a hint of future policies thus:

"Other means than restrictive money policy must be used under present conditions to control unwarranted price advances which result in the rise of the cost of living . . .

"The remedy lies not in a restrictive monetary policy but in vigorous government intervention with all the powers at its command to deal directly with the causes that might endanger the progress of a stable and enduring recovery."

System Is Complicated

Why not? asks the average man. If prices get out of line, why not let the government regulate them? Plausible enough, as, indeed, are most surface attitudes toward increase of government power. But if government sets out to control price, it must control labor cost, and if it sets out to control profits, it must affect the values of stocks and bonds, real estate and what not. Once that vicious circle starts, we might have a panic caused as much by government ineptitude this time as it was caused by the speculative mania of private interests in 1929.

Worse than this, however, is the cry that the government should have "all necessary powers to deal with the situation." This is the beginning of dictatorship and the end of democracy. It started that way in Germany and in Italy. It is starting that way in America. Little by little as political government seeks to manage a nation's economy and to control economic laws, when it cannot control human nature or human relations, the economic system is undermined.

As unemployment grows and hardships for the poor people increase because their pay envelopes will not buy necessities of life, the demand arises for the extinction of all opposition to the government, no matter from what quarter. Then come limitations on the church, the press and on political parties.

Nobody in the administration wants to bring about such conditions, of course, and everybody, including John Lewis, in the labor world is denouncing dictatorships but the trend of the moment is toward more and more intervention by government in economic affairs with the idea of artificial control of the businesses of the country, an adventure that has usually led straight to economic chaos and then inevitably to dictatorship as the only alternative to anarchy.

Letters From Our Readers

NEW SITDOWN PROPOSAL

Editor of The Star: Just a reader of your daily paper. I want to state I have been a reader of the Marion Daily Star for the last 32 years and hope to read it for the next 32 years. I am 52 years old.

I have been watching the paper and listening on the radio and have read and heard about the sitdown strikes all over the United States. It seems to me that they win out and so getting down to the final question, why wouldn't it be possible for citizens of the state and the United States to organize a sitdown strike against taxes?

If the people don't call for a showdown the question is, where is this going to stop? It seems to me that as soon as a man gets into office, from the president on down to dog catcher, regardless of who he is, all he thinks of is to get his relatives and friends good jobs and start raising salaries. Let these so-called white shirt men live on the salaries that a good old dirt farmer has to live on and there won't be so many of them looking for these jobs. I would like to hear from other readers on this question.

More to follow later on.

FIRST MARRIAGE CODE

Although the first legislature of Ohio, in session from March 1 to April 16—barely seven weeks—was required to give most of its time to the details of state government, it did enact a number of general laws.

One of the first such matters to be considered was the regulation of marriage. That act permitted male persons 21 years of age and over and females 18 years of age and over to marry. It carried also a provision, as our present law on the subject does, that with the consent of parents or guardians male persons 18 years of age or over and female persons 14 years of age and over might enter into the bonds of matrimony. A general marriage code also was formulated.

Married Comrades

BY ADELE GARRISON

Appearance of Madge's Father Explains Need for Secrecy at Inn

"HOW COME?" Mary queried in slangy excitement when Lillian asked if we realized that we were still "in a dungeon cell."

"Look around you," Mrs. Underwood answered. "There isn't a window in the place. But there is fresh air, so I am sure those gratings"—she indicated a pair with an eloquent forefinger—"mask up-ward shafts to the ground above. But we're still below the earth's surface."

"We found out that little thing too," Harry said. "The Lord only knows how far below the surface we are, but I think it's quite a step. D'ye know what I think?"

"Ask us something easy," his wife told him, gibing, "but don't waste time in the asking. Tell us quickly."

"Well, I believe this is one of the chief's most carefully guarded hideouts: we all know he has a number of them scattered around the country, and you can bet he's given most careful directions for our being brought here."

Six at Dinner?

"Do you think," I quavered, "that he may be coming here to-night?"

Mr. Underwood shot a kindly pitying glance at me.

"I don't believe there's a chance in the world," he said. "That isn't the way he does things. He probably has some particular job for each of us, and thinks this is the best place for us to stay until he's ready for us to do it."

"Probably that's it," I said despondently, and then Mary gave an excited cry as she pointed a dramatic finger at the dinner table.

"Look!" she exclaimed. "Am I dreaming, or are there six places set?" Our eyes followed her hand and we verified her observation.

"That's right, Mary," Lillian said. "Six it is. But that doesn't—"

"And we're only five," Mary swept on triumphantly. "Don't you see? Somebody's coming to dine with us! It might be Grand-pa Spencer, and it might be — Neal!"

Her voice was tremulous, eager, and I knew that Lillian hated to dampen her happy anticipation which we feared could not be realized.

"You mustn't hope for that, dear child. Remember, we don't know that the chief is in contact with either of the Veritzens. And if he were, the last thing the chief would do would be to send an inexperienced lad like Neal on an errand which he evidently considers a highly important one. I think it is far more likely that your Auntie Madge was misunderstood over the telephone, and that the cook and waitress of this establishment are preparing for a party of six instead of five."

"That is just what they are doing," said a voice behind us, and we whirled to confront the tall, spare figure of a comely competent woman. Apparently it was Mrs. Perkins.

Favorable Impression.

Brown gray hair neatly banked around a well-shaped head, an intellectual face with rather classical outlines, shrewd gray eyes behind eyeglasses, and a firm mouth which twitched slightly at the corners as she greeted us, made up an outward personality which I liked at sight, and I knew that my impression was shared by the others of our party.

"The Smiths of Narragansett, I believe," she said with twitching lips. "I am so glad to see you, but I can not permit you to slander my understanding of a telephone message. There are six places at dinner, and the sixth—"

She never finished her sentence. At my first glance of the figure which came from the door behind her, I flashed across the room, and was clasped closely in my father's arms.

HOBSON'S HEROISM RECALLED AT DEATH

Sank Ship To Bottle Spanish Fleet and Later Fought Narcotics and Liquor.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 17 — Rear Admiral Richmond P. Hobson, the Spanish-American war hero who bottled up the enemy's fleet in Santiago harbor, died suddenly of heart disease. He was 66.

The former naval officer who had devoted his energies in latter years to an unrelenting war against the use of narcotics, was stricken as he prepared to leave his [illegible] for his office.

Statesman, author, lecturer and advocate of world-wide prohibition, Admiral Hobson shot into international prominence as a young naval constructor when he ran the dilapidated collier Merrimac into the entrance of Santiago harbor and sank it amid a hail of gunfire.

With his crew of seven volunteers he was fished out of the water by an enemy ship and made a prisoner of war.

So audacious was the feat that it excited even the admiration of the Spanish commander, Admiral Cervera who sent his chief of staff to Hobson's superior under a flag of truce with a letter extolling the prisoners' bravery.

A month later Hobson and his gallant crew were released in an exchange of prisoners arranged by Col. John Jacob Astor of the United States general staff.

Four years ago Admiral Hobson's exploit was recorded officially on the pages of history when President Roosevelt presented him with the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Congress may have been tardy with its recognition, but the public was not. For years he was the subject of public adulation.

"They dragged me off trains in the middle of night to make speeches and [illegible] mothers [illegible] kissed me because they wanted their [illegible]," he related.

Because it was the custom in the days following the war for women of all ages to embrace him on sight the hero of the Merrimac became known for a time as the "Hero of the Merry Smack."

President McKinley in 1898 rewarded him with a promotion that placed him above all the lieutenant commanders. For "extraordinary heroism," McKinley said.

MURDER CLUE FAILS TO CLEAR MYSTERY

similar to one [illegible] before last Thursday night's slaying.

"Miss Ludwig was taken from the home of Detective Burt Mehling to an undisclosed residence when police said she was receiving too much publicity. Cable [illegible] remained in seclusion at his Canton residence.

"I know I'm in a bad spot but I'm sure everything is going to come out all right," the former dress shop proprietor informed a Cleveland News reporter who interviewed her at her brother's request.

"They will soon find out all about it," Miss Ludwig declared, "and the guilty person will be locked up."

The Canton man who reported to police for questioning was reported to have recently made remarks indicating ill will toward Mrs. Cable.

Reported Out of City

Police were informed that this man was absent from Canton from early in the morning of the day of the murder until several hours after Mrs. Cable died in Mercy hospital here of wounds inflicted by the shotgun firing that was fired at her by someone standing outside the breakfast room window of the Cable home.

They also learned, however, that he is reported to have driven a car other than his own last Thursday and that his car was used that day by another person whose identity is known to police.

The man questioned so far has not figured publicly in the murder investigation and is not one of the four or five men known to have attended parties in the Akron apartment house "love nest."

Visitors Named

Two Canton men, one of whom is said to have relayed messages between Miss Ludwig and Cable when Cable was home in Canton, an Akron professional man and at least one Cleveland resident were named among visitors to the Sherrard apartment in the 10-hour police questioning of Miss Ludwig Monday night and early this morning.

"A good woman has been the innocent victim of one of the country's most vicious crimes," Mayor Seccombe said in announcing the reward.

He asked public spirited citizens to swell the reward fund with contributions so that this fund will reach a size sufficient to bring about a speedy solution of this dastardly crime.

Supt. Howard G. Robinson of the Ohio State Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation arrived here from London Prison farm late yesterday afternoon and went into conference with Police Chief Ira A. Manderbaugh and Fred P. Dengler, an investigator from Robinson's office.

The three officers discussed the [illegible] prints found outside the shot-shattered window of the breakfast room and the size and number of shotgun pellets found in the walls and ceiling of the room itself but had no conclusions to announce.

Doesn't Want a Lawyer

Miss Ludwig, who emerged from the long grilling of herself and Cable at 3:35 a. m. yesterday weary but with the same calm assurance she has exhibited since she was first taken into custody for questioning at Steubenville, O., Friday, remained at the home of a Canton detective all day yesterday while two Canton attorneys, both of them Republican leaders in Stark county, explained they had not been retained by the divorcee.

The two attorneys appeared at the police station while Miss Ludwig was being questioned and asked to see her, saying they had been sent by friends of Miss Ludwig.

Miss Ludwig told Barthelmeh, who has been working with Capt. Clark on the investigation, that she did not desire legal representation at this time.

She added that she did not feel that she required such assistance.

Dr. and Mrs. C. T. Hill, owners of the Akron apartment house where the Cable-Ludwig "love nest" was located, came to Canton this afternoon and conferred briefly with Capt. Clark concerning activities and persons connected with the apartment occupied by Miss Ludwig and the contractor.

No trace of the shotgun used to murder Mrs. Cable has been found despite diligent search.

understood agreed provisionally to waive their own demands and extend M. Blum freedom in dealing with the situation.

Coincidentally, there were several brief strikes and talk of a 24-hour general walkout to protest the action of police in dealing with the Communist demonstrators who last night besieged a rightist mass meeting in Clichy, part of the industrial "red ring" around Paris.

Despite the Communists' reported agreement to let M. There still was danger that at least some of the Radical Socialists, blaming the Communists for the Clichy [illegible], would [illegible] the premier [illegible].

CENTRALIZED RELIEF FOR AGED OPPOSED

Ohio Eagles Favor Plan To Bar Politics in Pension System

By The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, O., March 17—The Ohio state aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, opposing administrative centralization of the division of aid for aged in the welfare department, indorsed today legislation which it said would eliminate politics and departmental bureaucracy from the pension system.

A statement prepared by its social security committee at state headquarters here said "the Fraternal Order of Eagles believe that there should be some local control and influence in the administration of aid for the aged."

Two bills before legislative committees would abolish county boards of aid for the aged.

"There are a number of obvious reasons why bureaucratic centralization at Columbus will not work for the best interest of the old people and the general welfare," the statement added.

REBELS SHELL CENTER OF MADRID AGAIN

By The Associated Press

Insurgent artillery pounded at Madrid today, scoring direct hits in the center of the capital while the Spanish government protested in London against what was termed a threatened violation of the European neutrality agreement.

The Spanish ambassador told Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden that two German ships, the August Cords and Consul Cords, loaded with war materials were en route to an insurgent port—in violation of the neutrality pact.

Eden agreed to bring the matter before the non-intervention control board, whose land and sea patrol to halt flow of arms and volunteers to Spain is expected to be fully under way by next Tuesday.

Reports that a Dutch coaling ship, the Jorge Johanna, had been seized by an insurgent warship near Ceuta, Morocco, prompted the Dutch government to order four submarines prepared for active service.

PROFESSOR PRAISES COURT CHANGE PLAN

Princeton Instructor Says President 'Has Grasped Realities of Situation'

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 17—Prof. Edward S. Corwin of Princeton university asserted today a majority of the supreme court members had forgotten their supreme obligation to interpret the Constitution as a "trial document" written for an undefined future.

The gray haired professor of constitutional law testified before the senate judiciary committee in behalf of President Roosevelt's court reorganization program.

As committee members assembled for the hearing they privately discussed the criticism voiced in a speech last night by Justice McReynolds of persons who complain about adverse court decisions.

Corwin confessed that when he first read of the President's plan he was "a bit startled," but said that upon further reflection he became convinced the President had grasped the realities of the situation.

"I haven't come upon anything in the course of the discussion that has made me change my mind in that regard," he added.

The witness said the supreme court majority had failed to live up to one of the fundamentals of the law—that an act of congress should be held constitutional unless it was found to be invalid beyond a reasonable doubt.

The hearing, scheduled to begin at 10 a. m., was delayed half an hour by the late arrival of witnesses.

CHRYSLER STRIKERS DEFY COURT OUSTER

the Dodge plant had grown to 7,000 and a union spokesman said that "we expect 30,000 by noon."

A band played outside the Chrysler Highland park plant where the union refused to permit executives to enter the corporation's administrative offices last week.

The injunction contained provision for a $10,000,000 penalty against high officials of the U. A. W. A. and the strikers to be levied against their goods, lands and chattels for violation of the order.

The sum was based upon the corporation's claim the strikers' occupation of its plants was causing "irreparable damage" and was costing hundreds of thousands of dollars daily.

In the recent General Motors strikes an injunction order which never was enforced provided for a $15,000,000 penalty.

Automotive strikes brought idleness to 60,000 Chrysler employes, 10,000 at the Hudson Motor Car Co. here, 2,000 Reo Motor Car Co. workers at Lansing, Mich., and to employes of numerous parts plants supplying the Chrysler Co.

The largest of these, the [illegible] Manufacturing Co. [illegible] had nearly [illegible] employes out of work.

The 73-year-old dean of conservatives, the eldest statesman in the house of commons, succumbed to a heart attack in his [illegible] home.

MARION CO. HEALTH GROUP REORGANIZED

named are Mrs. V. H. Barchill, vice president; Mrs. V. E. Orcutt, secretary; Kenneth Tobin, treasurer; Miss Alma Denney, county tuberculosis nurse, representative director.

The advisory committee named by Dr. Brady is composed of Dr. O. M. Young, James Reed, A. W. Fette, T. J. Frericks, Dr. N. Sifritz, Dr. Martin M. Weinbaum, Harry F. Margwarth, Mrs. Juanita Peebles, Mrs. Orcutt, Dr. C. J. Altmaier, Dr. R. T. Morgan, Miss Grace Colvin, C. A. Hudson and D. T. Mills.

Mr. Fette, Dr. Young, Mr. Frericks and Miss Colvin were named an executive committee to meet in April, July, September and December of each year.

Mrs. Grace Ulsh was named to conduct the annual sale of Christmas health seals in Marion city and Mrs. R. I. Todd was named county seal sale chairman. Mrs. Peebles was named to be in charge of the league's education and publicity campaigns.

"We do want to develop a program of education," Dr. Brady said this morning. "It is my ambition to enlarge this committee and have publicity and executive committees to distribute reading matter in schools, issue pamphlets and bulletins, to show motion pictures before Parent-Teacher associations and other organizations. There should be a committee in each township of four or five persons to interest the community in the cause."

Membership Report

A report made last night showed that the league has a membership of 936 residents of the county, membership being automatic with the purchase of $1 or more of Christmas health seals.

Mr. Tobin reported a balance of $420.60 in the league's treasury.

Miss Denney, whose work in the city and county is made possible by the Anti-Tuberculosis league through funds raised in the seal sale and the federal social security fund, gave a short talk outlining the nature of her duties.

In cases where a skin test for tuberculosis shows positive reaction, X-ray examinations are made and if the case is advanced, sanatorium care is arranged for at once, she explained. The patient returns to the sanatorium at regular intervals for a check-up by physicians and if the patient is a child he or she is watched closely through high school. Care of children has been adequate, Miss Denney said, but facilities for the care of adults is somewhat limited.

Marion county now has about 18 patients in the Mt. Vernon institution and [illegible] in other sanatoriums according to her report.

Miss Denney was representative director [illegible] state public health meeting March 15 [illegible] Neil House in Columbus.

Dr. Brady will attend a meeting of the executive committee of the Ohio Public Health association on Thursday, March 25, at the association [illegible] in Columbus.

[illegible] J. Armitage, president of the Cleveland Van Operators association, announced that a 50 cent an hour increase in moving rates would follow settlement of a 16-day-old strike in which all of the city's vans were idle.

The drivers returned to work today under a two year contract providing substantial wage increases, Armitage said.

A sitdown strike of about 600 workers continued at the Ohio Leather Co. in Girard near Youngstown and there was no break in the deadlock in the strike of United Rubber Workers at the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. in Akron where 11,500 persons are idle.

Refers to British Nervousness Over Italian Advances in Mediterranean

By The Associated Press

TRIPOLI, Italy, March 17—Premier Mussolini, referring scathingly to British nervousness over Italy's ascendancy in the Mediterranean, told a cheering throng of 100,000 today the Italian empire had been forced to rearm to meet the rearmament threat of others.

While the guns of the massed Italian battlefleet boomed in the harbor of the province's capital, Il Duce shouted:

"We rearm on sea, in the sky and on land because it is our imperious duty in the face of the armaments of others."

The premier, paying his first visit to the Italian colony on the southern shore of the Mediterranean in 10 years, spoke from a pavilion in front of the governor's palace on gigantic lictor rods—symbol of fascism.

EVE'S ORCHARD

By MARGARET WIDDEMER

[illegible] Margaret [illegible]

[illegible] Eve Mannersfield [illegible] her 200-year-old [illegible] hard in Connecticut [illegible] working years in New [illegible] to rent or sell, [illegible] Jenny and re- [illegible] hattan apartment life. [illegible]dency to stay in her [illegible] home grows. Quiet, George Cleveland, who [illegible] and Uncle Henry, an [illegible] friend help her move [illegible] crowd drives out the [illegible] When they leave, [illegible] her surprise—the [illegible] being homeless, have [illegible] board with Eve.

[illegible] EIGHTEEN

[illegible] gently [illegible] Eve hesitated. "We [illegible] whether you want us or [illegible] I don't know wh[illegible] call us."

[illegible] responsible, had [illegible] and was in the [illegible] overcoated to go, [illegible] Judge would [illegible] anything. But the [illegible] hungrily anxious [illegible] asked by its very in[illegible] not to ask any[illegible]

[illegible] quickly. After all [illegible] Henry, it would only [illegible] The house was [illegible] certainly; the money [illegible] but more than [illegible] she couldn't [illegible] It would mean everything in the world to the couple "like a dog on a chain," as George had said. The air of tenseness, the undernourished look that came of late hours and little fresh air would disappear with a country vacation.

"You understand I may rent in a fortnight, even," she said. "But I'd love to have you till then."

"Darling!" Marylin embraced her. "Even for a week it would give us a chance to get our breaths. And anyway, you mayn't rent for ages. The wanderers have a haven!"

Peter also hugged her. "And now that our crime is revealed I'll carry the suitcases up," he said.

As for Judge, who never kissed anybody, he came up and stood very still beside Eve.

"I—I'm obliged, Eve," he said.

Then he ran out of the room. Eve knew he was hunting for somewhere to cry without being seen.

Ellen, behind her, said nothing at all in a way that Eve well knew meant disapproval.

"Ellen, what else could I do? And after all, I love a houseful, and it will help with expenses in the most wonderful way," she said, moving with Ellen to the other end of the room and speaking in a low voice.

"Why yes, dear, if you're glad I am," Ellen said. "Shall I come up and help you hunt them up bedding, or did they bring it?"

Since everybody knew that for years the Featherstones had told everyone that they were through being slaves to things and had reduced life to four suitcases, Eve wondered if Ellen was being sarcastic. But it wasn't like Ellen; and seeing her sweet little pointed face, so anxious always to be kind, Eve was ashamed of herself for thinking so.

"No, you wouldn't know where the sheets are," she said. "I'll get them when the rest have gone."

But Ellen slipped out of the room. Killan had vanished somewhere; Dillard Betz had stolen out of the darkness, shamefaced, but not sufficiently so to walk to the station. Denny came close and took her hand. He bent and kissed her goodby. The presence of Marylin never counted; Marylin kissed everyone. The rest were at the car.

"My own darling! I've scarcely had a minute alone with you. I'll be out next week-end if it's humanly possible," Denny whispered before he went.

"Oh," Marylin cried suddenly, "Florence Willetts' handbag! I promised she should have it back yesterday—she's sailing tomorrow! Where did I put it? Denny, tell Jean to wait!"

Killan Is Obnoxious

Eve remembered where it was. She ran upstairs to get it from the middle of the bed in the front room. She found it, shook out its contents on the counterpane and turned to run back with it.

Jack Killan was coming into the room, his impudent bright eyes on hers.

"Here, take it down," she said, waving it. She felt that kindness toward him which one feels for parting guests because they are parting.

"No hurry," said Jack, with a smile. He slid the inevitable arm around her.

"Oh, don't," Eve said as casually as she could for the shiver of repulsion she felt. She would have been sharper, but for remembering how she had let him kiss her for Denny to see. "Must you do that sort of thing?"

"Oh, say, why make an exception of me?"

This wasn't funny. He was grabbing her again, and he was stronger than she was.

"Stop! And go away!" She sounded to herself like a frightened small girl. She struggled to get loose.

"I realy would stop, Killan," said George's unhurried baritone behind her. "I don't think she likes it."

Jack Killan released his grip, looked foolish, then recovered himself and managed a grin. "Always butting in, Cleveland. Eve and I didn't want you."

"Better take this down with you," said George, handing his friend the handbag Eve had come for. And Killan, so matter-of-fact was George, actualy went.

"See you soon," he said to Eve. He tried to be jaunty, but he also was rather crestfallen.

"Thank you," Eve said [illegible] Then, "I hate your friend. He's horrible."

"Not my friend," said George. "Here, sit down, you poor child." He was talking rather faster than usual and more angrily. "I happened to go to Groton with him, and he [illegible] and wasn't up to me when mother dragged me [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] that's [illegible] tried to cramp as ever since. I know he's a bounder. That's why I came up for the bag."

She took a long breath. Things were less important suddenly at his steady coolness. She stood [illegible] letting to move or speak, leaning against the door. [illegible] the front door slammed. The car started up outside, dimmed in the distance. The party was gone all but [illegible]. A sense of spaciousness settled down over the old house. There was no sound except the normal country ones: a sleepy hen remarking that she had laid an excellent egg, the creak of a tree outside the window in the wind.

Eve sat down on the bed. She did not know how piteously and wearily she looked up at George, nor why he suddenly came and stood over her with his hands resolutely behind him, and said, "Eve," and stopped, and then said, "Eve—" again. He said it a third time, and then—

"I can't stand it any longer. You're so sweet and beautiful and plucky and alone, with not a soul to look after you. I meant to keep quiet for a long time, but I can't. Brutes like that being able to jump at you, because they think you have nobody to fight them off—"

She stared up at him, scarcely able to believe what she heard; she was too tired to move. She put her hands flat on each side of her and leaned on them and listened helplessly.

"Please don't look frightened at me," George said desperately. He sat down opposite her on a small stiff chair. "I won't rush you. There's nothing to do about it for a month, if you like. I tried to prepare you a little yesterday for what I thought I'd be saying maybe in a month or two—about what my life is, and the sort of things it would have. . . . I thought you understood a little. I always know what I want out of life immediately. I don't act like it or look like it, I know, but it's the way I am about everything. My profession. Getting this Seymour house. My university. I knew that first night Mitzi Power dragged me over to your party, where I didn't at all want to come—I knew, when I saw you and talked to you, that I wanted you for my wife."

He stopped talking. He had flushed, but aside from that, he seemed perfectly collected. He waited to hear what she would say, as if he had been asking her to go for a walk.

Her Inevitable Answer

Eve [illegible] on the edge of the [illegible]. She was [illegible] George [illegible] He was [illegible] She said [illegible] Then [illegible] steady. [illegible] eyes were on her [illegible] strong [illegible] waiting. And she [illegible] with a sinking heart [illegible] inevitable answer [illegible] in spite of all the good angels [illegible] strength and [illegible] Few men were [illegible] had wanted to be [illegible] And Eve did want him for a friend.

Nevertheless she spoke.

"I [illegible] George."

"I don't mean now. I mean think about it."

"I can't even think about it."

"You don't know that," he said. "So long as there isn't anybody else, you might want me after awhile. If I worked hard at it. I don't think you liked me when you met me. I think you do now. You might—care for me enough to marry me after awhile."

She shook her head.

"George, I can't."

"Not ever?"

"Not ever."

He said [illegible] "You don't know that. And so long as there isn't anybody else I'm going on thinking you will. Except," he said naively, "that I'm crazy over you, we scarcely know each other yet."

His eyes never wavered, but she saw that [illegible] broad strong hands laid flat on his knees were trembling.

Friendship survives for George and Eve, tomorrow.

The Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND

SAFE-AND-SANE MARRIAGE

At [illegible] last somebody has come to the rescue of marriage. Miss Jane Todd, member of the New York assembly, has for the second time introduced a bill providing that all marital aspirants be given 72 hours to think it over, between the granting of the license and the wedding ceremony.

This seems an awfully short time in which to consider the most vital step of your life, but it at least allows for the hangover to clear up and the head to start aching, and thus may prevent many of those hasty alcoholic marriages which begin in a fog in a night-club and end in a scandal in Reno.

Besides, such a law would make marriage almost as safe-and-sane and sacred as divorce now is.

Oh yes, divorce is a serious matter. In some states you have to wait from three to six months after the divorce is "granted" before you are actually divorced. In California they give you a whole year to reconsider. And in the meantime you aren't a wife; you aren't a maid; you aren't a widow, and above all you are not divorced! You are merely "Simpsonized!" But you are given "time out" to change your mind before you are handed your final papers.

Besides, before you can get a divorce decree you must prove that you are worthy of it and that you are divorcing somebody for a real reason, not just for fun or for an experiment—or because you're in an alcoholic haze and haven't the slightest idea of what you are doing. You must prove that you are innocent and pure and have been a devoted and long-suffering helpmate.

You can't teeter into court at dawn or midnight, smelling of Scotch or black narcissus, and with lipstick all over your collar, or your make-up on crooked, as may be, and expect to win your case. You've got to be neatly dressed as for church and in your soberest mind.

But you can teeter right out of a wild night-club party, stagger into a taxicab, and be all tied up in the holy bonds of wedlock ('til death or the judge do you part!) before you are sure that you know each other's telephone numbers. "Blessings, my children" — when the headache wears off!

This is the sort of thing that the Jane Todd bill aims to rectify. To make marriage a little more serious and a little more safe-and-sane by making it a little more difficult and a little less rowdy.

Marriage is so easy that it's a shame to take the certificate. Anybody can get married, any time—and almost anywhere. Even in jail!

OMAR Certified FRESHNESS

"I bring to your door ONLY TODAY'S BREAD"
ALL YESTERDAY'S Omar Bread is sold in our "returned-goods" store
Special Today

Omar baked goods are never carried over to the second day. All that remain unsold each evening are disposed of through our own "returned-goods" store. The Omar 800 Bread which is delivered at your door is always today's bread.

W. J. Cook
President OMAR BAKERY

● Why risk not getting the fresh-baked flavor you want every time you buy bread? You cannot judge by the feel of the loaf! Bread still feels soft when it's a day old, or older.

But there is a way you can be sure of getting today's bread! The Omar plan of certified freshness definitely protects you.

Hail Omar, your baker man. The bread he brings you is direct from the ovens; you can depend on its being gloriously fresh.

Tune in! on Omar's Mary Baker program, Station WBNS, 12:45-1:00 P. M. every day except Sundays.

Rich in calcium! To help provide adequate amounts of the food mineral, calcium, in the diet of both adults and children, Omar 800 Bread is made with calcium-rich milk solids (not fat).

WHEAT PRICES SOAR ON ALL MARKETS

Argentine Shippers, Fearing Export Ban, Reported Buying Grain from Liverpool.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 17 — World-wide skyrocketing of wheat values today accompanied advices that Argentine shippers were buying wheat back from Liverpool merchants, fearing the Argentine government may restrict exports.

Big profit-taking on price upturns, however, led to late reactions from the day's top quotations. Reports of moisture beneficial to domestic crops in western areas served also to bring about market setbacks.

At the close, wheat futures in Chicago were 1⅝@1¾ above yesterday's finish, May 1.35@1.35⅛, July 1.23⅞@1.24, corn ⅝ off to ⅜ up, May 1.09½@⅝, July 1.05⅛@⅜, Oats unchanged to ¼ lower, and provisions unchanged to 17 cents higher.

STUDY CITY WPA STREET PROJECT

Officials Plan for Completion of Work Before June 30 Deadline.

Plans for completion of a number of city street repair projects by the WPA were moving forward in city and WPA offices today as officials made a study of work that can be completed by June 30.

Among the streets under consideration are South Prospect street, King avenue and South State street. The South Prospect street project was started last fall and was delayed by winter weather. It included resurfacing and widening. The widening phase of the program has been completed but resurfacing is yet to be done. The South State street project consists of relaying brick between Church and Center streets to complete work which started at Delaware avenue. King avenue and a number of other minor projects complete the tentative project.

Officials today were unable to say definitely when work would be started but indicated that operations would not start until weather conditions are favorable.

The completion date of June 30 was set on the basis of a report received by city officials from WPA officials stating that only those projects which can be completed by that time will be acceptable. Officials explained this procedure resulted from the fact that the WPA fiscal year ends on that date. All estimates and allowances for work are being made by the WPA on the basis of June 30 completion. Work after this date will depend on additional federal appropriations by congress, officials explained.

In addition to this work officials are considering a project which will call for macadamizing approximately 25 city streets to be selected on a basis of need.

Other WPA street work now in progress included the macadamizing of 18 alleys.
